OUR STORIES OF LEISURE THEN AND NOW

An intergenerational oral history project studying the changing nature of our leisure time over the last 60 years.

participation through creative media

Free Time volunteer investigators are recording oral histories of our leisure time. Hunting out stories that illuminate the past and shine light on our times.

This project aims to preserve and capture memories, to ensure that an important part of our heritage will not be lost. This new archive will be housed at Dorset History Centre, so that future generations can discover the views and feelings of ordinary people through the descriptive accounts of their experience.

Young and old will collaborate and share in a range of activities leading up to an exhibition at Dorset County Museum in March 2014, with a Free Time app.

We need your memories

Add your stories or old photos of people at play going about their everyday leisure activities, to this important archive.
